Why the American Flag is Important to Me

The U.S. flag means a lot to me. It is important to me because it represents the country, the people, the religions, the union, liberty, justice, blind people, freedom, opportunities, and people that are and were in war, people who are alive or who have died. And people who are fighting and have fought for our country. The American Flag is a symbol of enduring freedom, and an emblem of unity. Most importantly, it is the symbol which at one point or another each person has pledged their allegiance to.

The pledge of allegiance is written in Braille on the tactile flag. Both the American and Braille Flag is a symbol of hope and love which stands now and forever.
