

WHAT THE AMERICAN FLAG MEANS TO ME

To me, the American flag is a piece of cloth with 13 stripes and 50 stars. The stripes represent the 13 stripes and 50 stars. The stripes represent the 13 original colonies and the stars represent the 50 states. It is one symbol of freedom and liberty. The flag is hung up outside many buildings and homes. People face the American flag while saying the pledge of allegiance. On the fourth of July, the American flag is shown. During wars when the Americans are fighting, their flag is raised to represent them. If someone showed me two flags, I wouldn't know which one was the American flag because both of them feel the same. People shouldn't judge me if I accidentally say the pledge while facing the wrong flag. I am proud of what America has done so far and don't want people to think I support another country. I have been completely blind since birth. I can't see light or colors, but I found out that the flag is red, white and blue. It symbolizes all the right that American citizens have. Although I can't see the flag, I still honor it and understand all of its significance.
